

Importing Food and Beverages into Canada

Importing goods across international borders does not have to be a challenging process. With thorough preparation and professional guidance, it can become a hassle-free experience with Farrow.

When it comes to imported goods, food and food-related products stand out due to their unique requirements. Unlike other products, food items are typically time-sensitive and demand extra attention during the import process. Not only do they go through standard customs procedures, but they also undergo rigorous inspection by various governmental departments and agencies. These additional measures are put in place to ensure the safety and quality of the food products being imported.

DID YOU KNOW...

Canada's biggest fruit import is bananas?

Importing Food Products into Canada: Process at a Glance

The following flow chart illustrates the process to import food and food related products into Canada.

This publication is not intended to provide legal or other professional advice. Readers are asked to contact their local Farrow representative for advice specific to their needs. Information provided is believed to be accurate at time of publication.

Start a confidential, no risk conversation with us today.

To request a quote or to obtain additional information, please contact:

 salesleads@farrow.com | farrow.com